Arleigh was involved in some of the early modern day history of Jehovah's witnesses. I also enjoyed talking with Sarah and Audrey about their life experiences. It will be a grand day to see long time faithful ones like them restored mentally and physically. My love to the family as death is still an enemy. I can hear Arleigh laugh. We will again!

Where do you begin to talk about someone like our Dad?? It seemed as though there was nothing he couldn't do. He was always such a strong (stubborn), active person so late in life that it seemed he would always be here. He was a little rough on the outside sometimes, but a tender man on the inside. He never failed to provide for his large family, by working hard. But the thing I treasure most about my Dad is the Spiritual Legacy he left behind. I cherish this legacy and look forward to seeing Dad again, "when all is new".

It was a privilege to have Dad here in our home for these past several months. We know we made him feel he was loved and appreciated for all he accomplished in his long life. Now we wait for his resurrection to see him young ,healthy ,and running again. <3
