“ David was my cousin. I only got to see him a few times in my life, but he sure left memories I will never forget. Somewhere between the ages of 10 to 13, we had a family reunion at Moses lake. It was an amazing time on such a beautiful lake. David knew I loved to fish and that, I had never got to experience walleye fishing before. He asked my step brother and I, if we wanted to go out with him. There was no way I was saying no. He got a cooler full of Pepsi, helped my step brother and I onto the boat, and away we were! He taught me how to set my fishing pole up for walleye. We got as many poles into the water as legally possible, sat back and listened to fishing stories from David. Next thing I know, one of David's pole gets hit. He sets the hook and asked if I'd like to reel it in. I said," Heck yes!" and got to work on getting that fish into the boat. David tells my step brother to start reeling in the other lines so the fish didn't get tangled into one of the lines. Next thing we know, on one of my poles my step brother says it feels like something got stuck onto the hook. Him and David start to trying to figure out what the line could be caught on. The reel starts giving line, a monster of a fish is what was on the line! David starts going between the both of us, giving us advice on how to bring these fish in. After a certain amount of time, it seemed like forever to little kid me, we get my fish into the boat! It was a gorgeous 20 something inch long walleye that was over 10 pounds. I was so giddy off the excitement! A little while later, my step brother lands his walleye into the boat. It was over 30 inches and I forget how many pounds, but it was gorgeous! All three of us were so excited and thrilled! We were all laughing and us two kids were just amazed. Cousin David reached into the cooler, pulling out a Pepsi for each of us. We had a cheers then started heading back in as it was getting around dinner time. We got our pictures taken to be put up at the little shop there at Moses lake. Its one of my favorite fishing stories and memories. David had a certain way of leaving an impression on your heart. His smile and laugh were so contagious. God became very lucky to have you back with him. You will always be remembered by this little cousin of yours. You are for surely missed.
