“ Dear John, Holly, Rob and family,
My deepest sympathy for your loss of Chrissy.
I have good childhood memories of us playing with dolls, eating homemade ice cream, holly noodles, playing at the park and listening to the band Journey in her room. Mine and my family's thought's and prayers are with you. The world has gotten sadder and dim but heaven has just gotten happier and brighter!

“ Oh my old friend, this is still heartbreaking news. The many days and hours we spent together growing up inside and out of the Hartwell house. So many memories to cherish with all the laughter, smiles, tears and fun times. You are such a true beauty inside and out. Honestly one of the most beautiful people I have ever had the pleasure of knowing. I will forever cherish all of our time together and conversations. I am content in knowing that you are at peace and back home with God. I am certain that my mom was there to welcome you with open arms, and take you under her wing. I Love You my Friend❤️❤️❤️

“ Oh Christine ~ I haven't quit crying since I heard the news. I was so very lucky to have been your friend for over 20 years. You were truly an amazing friend. We could talk (laugh) through anything! The hours would fly by as we would chat and craft at the same time. You were so incredibly talented in so many different ways. The jewelry pieces you created, your gift of baking, and your handcrafted stamped cards are so very beautiful. Truly a work of art ~ just like YOU!

You were always so strong when facing so many health adversities, always with a smile on your beautiful face. No matter how dire things got you would always have a joke or find a way to make the situation lighter. Just one of your many gifts to those lucky enough to have known and loved you. When things got worse and you had to move away to be closer to your parents it was hard to let you go. I'm glad we managed to keep in contact through all those phone calls and texting. I treasure the messages I still have on my phone. Just last week when we were texting you asked me to call you later if I had the time as your phone was dying ~ I was busy getting ready for a bazaar and didn't get the chance to make that call. I will forever regret not calling you. I thought we'd have more time. Never did I think you would be taken from me so soon.

I cherish the trips this past year that I was able to make it over to see you. Those times are so close to my heart. Your beautiful face, your humor, your laughter, your creativity, & your kindness will remain with me always. I am so heartbroken knowing you're gone and that I will never have the pleasure of spending another day visiting and crafting with you. I am so happy that you are no longer suffering, you suffered far too much. But I'm selfish too because I want you here with me. God knew you needed rest and that your poor heart had just been worked too hard. He granted you peace and has given me a very special guardian angel. I will forever miss you my friend. I love you Christine.
