“ Dear Janie,

The world may seem a bitter place, and life may seem a torturous journey for you right now. Anyone who knew you and Pancho as a couple will agree that the life from your life has been snuffed out. But they will also believe that you will not fail the love that blossoms within you. The strength with which you must get through this ordeal will come to you when you are ready for it. Be valiant in grief and life will seem a little easier than it is. You have the whole world to look after you, so never ever think of yourself as alone on this journey.

*Heartfelt condolences,
